This consultation group will support the University's budget planning process for the next year, but with implications that will likely extend into the 2021-23 biennium. The role of this consultation group is not to replace existing governance groups (e.g., UPRC), the operational work that is the purview of Budget and Financial Planning and Academic Affairs, or the final budget decisions that rest with university's executive leadership. Rather, we believe that the consultation group can provide considerable value in better understanding external social and economic drivers, provide input on how these drivers impact our financial planning, share the thinking of their respective constituencies, and help us to better communicate with the campus community.
